GLOBAL VIRTUAL CLASSROOM

2022/23 AWARD WINNING WEBSITES ANNOUNCED

May 1, 2023 – The Give Something Back International Foundation (GSBI) has announced the winners of the 2022/23 Global Virtual Classroom Contest (GVC) -- a free online collaborative learning project. The GVC Program fosters creativity, cross cultural understanding, and helping others. It also provides an opportunity for students to learn web design skills as well as safely and effectively use the resources found on the internet.

Sponsored by GSBI, the GVC program, now in its twentieth year, provides a unique opportunity for primary and secondary school students from different countries to work with and learn from each other. They collaboratively design a website on a topic of their choosing. A panel of judges evaluates the final work and determines the winners.

JoAnn Patrick-Ezzell, the Chair of the Give Something Back International Foundation, said, “Natural disasters and Covid continued to affect in some way many of our participating schools around the world. We are very grateful to the dedicated and talented teachers who demonstrated such flexibility and resilience to support and enable their students participation.”

This year the contest had participants from India, Russia, Taiwan, Turkey, and the United States. Their efforts were judged for content, presentation, collaboration, and a helping focus. The helping focus encourages students to “give back to others” as they demonstrate social, environmental responsibility or support worthy causes.

Andrew Ezzell, the President of GSBI said "Once again, the students displayed amazing creativity and collaboration in exploring their selected topics. Beyond the impressive accomplishment of their website projects, we are very pleased that the students participated in a myriad of ways to give back to their schools, their communities, and to others around the world. They made a difference!"

In the Primary School Division, the students brought to life such diverse subjects ranging from an exploration of our Oceans; focusing on many facets of environmentalism; and providing helpful perspectives on embracing change.
